Youth Grantwriters at the Table: Involving Young People in Grantwriting

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 2010

11:00 AM - 12:00 NOON

It is commonly accepted wisdom that being young can be a strength when it comes to raising money through sales and events. But what about when it comes to grantwriting? When it comes to grants for youth organizing and leadership, young people may be your most persuasive advocates. This webinar is designed for professional fundraisers and youth service workers, although young people are also welcome to participate. We will focus on:

- Fostering youth leadership through the grant-making process
- Dividing grantwriting into manageable steps that can be accomplished by individual youth or youth teams
- Preparing youth teams to make presentations to funders
- Understanding the adult advisors role when supporting young grantwriters

This webinar will be co-led by Sharon Vardatira, NEN's Fund Development Specialist and Joshua Wolfsun (16 years old), a youth activist (as well as grantwriter and fundraiser) with Student News, Riverwolf Productions, and Building Harmonies.

This webinar is limited to a maximum of 20 participants; please register early!
